Reason for Allowance

1. Regarding claims 1-32, the prior art fails to teach or suggest a channelizing receiver, the channelizing receiver includes a plurality of channel receivers, each channel receiver comprising a channel to channel arbitration unit for receiving the magnitude signal and a first other magnitude signal from a first other channel receiver of the channelizing receiver produced in response to the first other channel receiver's detection of the electromagnetic signal during the initial timing period within a first other frequency range being monitored by the first other channel receiver, comparing the magnitude signal and the first other magnitude signal, and if the first other magnitude signal is greater the magnitude signal, inhibiting the transmission from the channel receiver of data responsive to the one detection signal, in combination with other limitations, as specified in the independent claims 1, and 22.

Regarding claims 33-48, the prior art fails to teach or suggest a channelizing receiver, the channelizing receiver includes a plurality of channel receivers, each channel receiver comprising a baseband combiner for combining the first digital signal and the second digital signal to provide a combined digital signal; and a channel processor for receiving the combined digital signal and transmitting data responsive to the detection of the electromagnetic signal if the magnitude of the combined digital signal exceeds a predetermined threshold, in combination with other limitations, as specified in the independent claim 33.

Regarding claims 49-54, the prior art fails to teach or suggest a method for detecting an electromagnetic signal falling within a frequency band, the method comprises the steps identifying within a predetermined time period a group of the channel processors producing the detection signals; comparing for the group the magnitude signals corresponding to the detection signals to identify the magnitude signal indicating the highest magnitude; and transmitting for the group from the channelizing receiver data corresponding to one of the detection signals only if the one detection signal is associated with the magnitude signal indicating the highest magnitude, in combination with other limitations, as specified in the independent claim 49.

Regarding claims 55-64, the prior art fails to teach or suggest a channelizing receiver, the channelizing receiver includes a plurality of channel receivers, each channel receiver comprising, comparing means for comparing the magnitude signal to a first other magnitude signal from a first other channel receiver of the channelizing receiver produced in response to the first other channel receiver's detection of the electromagnetic signal, and if the magnitude signal is less than the first other magnitude signal, inhibiting the transmitting means from transmitting the data, in combination with other limitations, as specified in the independent claim 55.

2. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
